NEW - Fathers Matter DVD

Fathers, whose children have been involved with local authority children's services, talk about their experiences.

The DVD draws upon the Fathers Matter research, which explores the engagement of fathers with social care services because of child welfare needs or concerns. It considers what barriers exist and how some authorities and practitioners are attempting to address this.

The views of fathers take centre stage in the DVD and are supplemented by comments from academia, social work, and the charity Family Rights Group.

The DVD includes:

- A film, which can be used to support training of social work students, front line social workers and their managers.
- Supplementary footage for those wishing to explore these issues in further depths.
